ATLANTA, GA – (June 1, 2016) – ScottMadden, Inc., a general management consulting firm, today announced that it has acquired Sussex Economic Advisors, LLC, a management consulting and economic advisory firm, to expand the firm’s offerings and expertise in regulatory strategy, utility ratemaking, and energy market assessments.

For more than 30 years, ScottMadden has had success in the energy industry by getting the job done right with integrity, tenacity, and a genuine passion for the work. Sussex Economic Advisors brings substantial experience and training in matters relating to regulatory economics, strategy and litigation, economic and financial advisory, market analysis and assessment, and cost of service and rate design, and its consultants are recognized experts in financial research and quantitative methods. Sussex Economic Advisors shares the same values as ScottMadden and is dedicated to providing energy clients with practical insights, rigorous analysis, and effective results with a relentless focus on client service.

“The addition of Sussex will enhance the capabilities of our firm, it will reinforce our outstanding culture, and it will advance our mission of delivering an exceptional consulting experience to all our clients,” said Brad Kitchens, president and CEO of ScottMadden.

With the addition of Sussex Economic Advisors, ScottMadden now has an office located in the greater Boston area to better serve clients located in the Northeast and beyond.
